The data above were extracted from Thomson Scientific's Essential Science Indicators database. This database, currently covering the period January 1997 to December 2007, surveys only journal articles (original research reports and review articles) indexed by Thomson Scientific. Articles are assigned to a category based on the journals in which they were published and Thomson Scientific's journal-to-category field definition scheme. Both articles tabulated and citation counts to those articles are for the period indicated. Here our ranking in psychiatry and psychology is by citations per paper -- among nations that collected 5,000 or more citations -- to reveal weighted impact. For articles with multiple authors from different nations, each nation receives full, not fractional, citation credit. Essential Science Indicators lists nations ranked in the top 50% for a field over a given period, based on total citations. In clinical medicine, 84 nations are listed, meaning 168 were surveyed. Twenty-six nations earned at least 100,000 citations for the period. The United Kingdom rank highly, following the United States.
